Rural school teacher, principal, elementary and secondary schools; superintendent, college professor—these are only a few of the positions held by Dr. Harold H. Stephenson before becoming President of Sacramento City College in 1956.

A man of diversified interests, Dr. Stephenson has held many appointments on national academic committees including the National Committee on School Finances and the Curriculum Commission of the American Association of Junior Colleges. He is active in fraternal and civic organizations in the community and serves on the Educational Relations Committee of the American Red Cross, Salvation Army Advisory Board, and Preston School of Industry Advisory Council. Dr. Stephenson has written for various professional journals and is co-author of a college textbook.

Thirty-eight years of educational experience have given Dr. Stephenson a broad background and a fund of knowledge from which to draw in his task as President of Sacramento City College.

37th Annual Homecoming

"Fractured Fairy Tales" was the theme of Sacramento City College's Homecoming—November 14-17. The events of Homecoming Weekend afforded alumni and students the opportunity to participate in the various festivities planned by the Homecoming Committee. Activities included in this colorful event were a Friday night bonfire rally, a downtown parade featuring the marching band and floats built by the various campus clubs and organizations, a Homecoming Queen contest, and an afternoon football game on Saturday between SCC and Modesto Junior College, won by the Visitors, 7-6.

1963 Football Season

Once again team members and spectator spirit made football the top sport on the Sacramento City College campus. Winning three out of five conference games, the football-minded Panthers scored a total of 104 points to their opponents' 104. Relying on an excellent Pierucci defense, built around only five returning lettermen, the team caused much havoc in the Valley Conference.

Inter-Club Council

Candidates for class offices gave speeches at the campaign assembly.

Spring president of Inter-club Council was Aaron Aronson.

The purpose of the Council is the coordination of the activities of the campus clubs and organizations for the promotion of College spirit.

Head Yell Leader, Gail Brinkerhoff, was elected for a year's term by vote of the student body.

The fall campaign assembly for class offices was in the quad.

Democracy in Action

Student voters gathered in the gymnasium to hear speeches by the candidates for student offices for the spring semester.

A new group on campus this year, SCC's Pepsters, did much to promote school spirit.

Student Administration

Executive Council is the governing body of Sacramento City College for student affairs. Some of its many functions include organizing student association activities such as Homecoming and Pioneer Day, promoting college spirit among students and faculty, acting as an advisory board for student-administration relations, and devising a budget for the school year.

Also the Executive Council fulfills a need on the College campus to help prepare students as future leaders by giving them practical knowledge and training in the workings of democratic government.

Judy Fishback, Mike McLellan, Aaron Aronson start for the State leadership conference.

A Milestone Into the Future

A significant development in the history of Sacramento City College (since its founding in 1916) occurred on March 17, 1964. On that day the voters of Sacramento County and parts of El Dorado and Yolo Counties approved a proposal to form a regional junior college district supported by an $18.2 million bond issue. As a result, SCC separated from the Sacramento City Unified School District (legally effective July 1, 1965) and joined with its cross-county sister, American River Junior College, in the coordination of an expanded program of higher education. Also the new administration, including a superintendent appointed by the elected seven-man Board of Trustees, will assist in the establishing of additional campuses in strategic locations in the new district. The college district will have excellent financial resources as a result of a broadened property tax base; thus it will be able to provide additional curricula and other educational services for the ever-increasing number of college students in this rapidly growing area of Northern California.

We Gratefully Acknowledge . . .

The editor and her staff acknowledge gratefully the assistance of many students, faculty and others in the production of "Pioneer" 1964. James Ford, a former student in the color and design classes, was the artist for the full color end pages of the book. Journalism faculty members, Miss Jean Stephens, Mr. Loy Laney, and Mr. Charles Slater, assisted in an advisory capacity. The American Yearbook Co., Glendale, California, represented by Mr. Dick Daniels, printed and bound the annual. The cover was designed by staff artists under the guidance of art faculty member Mr. John Moore and was reproduced by the S. K. Smith Co., Los Angeles, California. The two capital city newspapers, the "Sacramento Bee" and the "Sacramento Union," contributed selected sports photographs and student activities photos. Portraits of most of the graduating students were made by Robert Loranger Studio, Sacramento. Also, Dean of Student Activities, Jack Mauger, and his secretary, Mrs. Doris Egbert, were helpful to the staff. The editor and her staff would also like to give their heart-felt gratitude to Mr. J. N. McIntyre, the "Pioneer" advisor, without whose patience and assistance this annual would never have been completed. The staff hopes that members of the college community and others interested in this photographic record of the 1963-64 academic year find the "Pioneer" 1964 enjoyable today and in the years ahead.
